I live one half mile from an existing energy corridor; five pipelines cross our property within a very confined space. The earliest dates from the 1930's and there are two more projected to be coming soon, Entrega and Williams. My husband's family homesteaded this land. The only fair arrangement to be made concerning energy corridors would be an adequate yearly lease paid to private landowners as it is to the federal government. If the country wants people committed to living in the wilds of Wyoming, things must change.
